

Where does a phone make the customer experience easier?

Think first. Then connect your example to marketing.

0:00-0:45

Think of one company or experience where a phone helps a customer.

0:45-2:00

Tell a partner:
What does the phone make easier?

2:00-5:00

Share two examples.
Then name one marketing function that could support it.

You may speak, point, write keywords, or use a prepared sentence.

Teacher cue: "I am giving you one minute to think. I will collect your ideas before showing a model."

Name the experience and the benefit

PAIR SENTENCE

"Customers use their phones at _____ to _____."

MAKE IT SPECIFIC

What does the phone help the customer do? Find something? Order? Give feedback? Make a buying decision?

LISTEN FOR

A clear company or setting, a phone action, and a customer benefit.

EXAMPLES YOU MIGHT HEAR

a grocery pickup
a movie order
a stadium request
a store rating
a delivery update

Teacher cue: collect ideas without correcting them yet. Ask, "How does that improve the customer's experience?"

The museum example

MODEL

Visitors text an emoji or phrase and receive matching artwork. The museum learns what interests them and can guide them to relevant art.

CONNECT

The phone creates feedback. The business uses that feedback to make the experience easier and more useful.

Ask: "Which student idea works in a similar way?"

Teacher cue: use this slide only after students have generated ideas, or when the room needs one concrete example.

One function is enough for this starter

Choose one function that could support the phone experience.

1

Information management

collect and use customer information

2

Product/service management improve what the customer receives

3

Channel management

make the offer easier to find or access

4

Selling

help the customer decide or purchase

Close: "We will use these ideas in today's notes and reading. The goal is a better customer experience and a business reason for the change."
